Nick Cain is an award-winning Australian performing artist and creative professional.

Nick Cain is a dynamic performer with a 20-year career spanning screen, stage, and voice. Known for his charismatic, energised and grounded performances, he has trained personally under Hollywood luminaries Ivana Chubbuck and Howard Fine.

He leads the upcoming horror feature Site Unseen as Noah, a deeply flawed killer. Distributed by Maslow Entertainment, the film is set for cinema release in 2026.

He has appeared in some of Australia's most beloved productions, including Neighbours, Home and Away, Triple Zero Heroes, and ABC's Utopia — bringing equal depth to both drama and comedy.

On stage, he earned critical acclaim for his portrayal of Laurence in Q44's stage production of Shining City, receiving five-star reviews. As a voice artist, he has worked with major brands like ANZ, American Express, Cadbury, and Pearson Education. He has also lent his voice to hosting radio shows for KISSFM Australia and leading the Australian arts podcast The Act of Storytelling.

Nick received the Best Actor award at the Canberra Short Film Festival for his lead role in Before I Go, a poignant film exploring mental health in rural communities, further establishing his advocacy for this crucial cause.

Nick is also an award-winning Content Director and Strategic Facilitator, collaborating with leading brands across music, fashion, arts, culture, retail, tech and design.

Nick is proudly represented by EastEnd Talent.
